INTRODUCES MEASURE TO REDUCE NUMBER OF LEGISLATORS

POLITICS INTO DEBATE

Senatorial Redistricting Turmoil Takes New Turn on Adoption of Ford Amendment

Jefferson City, Aug. 29—A new turn was taken yesterday by the state constitution concerning rearrangement of the state senatorial districts. A measure was presented by M. E. Ford, Democrat of Maryville, offering an entirely new aspect to the situation, which has kept the convention in more or less of a political turmoil for weeks.

Briefly, the Ford proposition, adopted as an amendment to the report of the committee on phraseology on the redistricting plan adopted a week ago would reduce the number of state senators from thirty-four to twenty-one and the number of members of the house of representatives from 150 to sixty-three.

Very much the same measure was presented a year ago and rejected. Under the terms of this amendment, no county or the city of St. Louis would be entitled to more than four members of the senate. This would deprive St. Louis of two of its present members and three under the measure reported by the committee, and deprives Kansas City of one additional member under the proposition adopted last week.

The Ford proposition provides for establishing twenty-one assembly districts in the state, with one senator and three representatives from each district. The governor, attorney general, secretary of state, state auditor and state treasurer would form the districts under practically the same provisions as those provided in the measure adopted last week. The Ford measure would become effective in January, 1928. For the 1926 election, the state senators would be elected for only two years, but for four years thereafter.

Politics entered at times into the long discussion following consideration of the Ford amendment and its adoption. It developed in the debate about twenty Republicans met last night to consider submitting two redistricting propositions to the voters, one to be prepared by the Republicans and the other by the Democrats and then allow the voters to choose. Nothing came of the conference however, but A. T. Dumm of Jefferson City and several other Democrats who had heard of the meeting construed it as meaning the Republican vote of the convention would be cast solid for the Ford amendment.

It was said in the debate that if the convention adhered to the Ford measure, it would destroy the redistricting plan adopted last week.

ALASKAN SCHOOLS ADVANCING RAPIDLY

SAYS MISS BETTY TURNER WHO JUST RETURNED FROM NORTH

STUDENTS WELL FITTED

For Professional Work—Have Great Difficulty in Retaining Teachers —Highways are Good

While touring through Alaska the last month, Miss Betty Turner, Red Cross secretary, who recently returned home, noticed that our northern territory is progressing rapidly in the modern system of education. Most of the important cities have accredited high schools and she was told that some of the students that go out from the high schools there to colleges and universities in the states are really farther advanced than those in our modern schools in the United States.

At the cities of Seward, Jeneau, Anchorage and Fairbanks where she visited, each had their accredited high school. Also at Fairbanks there is a splendid school of mines that was started two years ago but all of the buildings have as yet not been completed. The government has an experimental farm at Fairbanks and some of the specimens she saw exhibited there would do credit to any Middle Western experiment station.

Miss Turner was told by a professor at one of the schools that the only trouble they had was to retain the teaching staff. The professor said that the instructors go to Alaska to get the experience and see the country and stay only about a year.

During the course of her journey Miss Turner saw a great many whales seal and canneries. In a radius of 15 miles there are 54 of them, most of the fish canned being salmon and salt herring.

On the Richardson Highway, kept up by the government, a distance of 321 miles, Miss Turner took a motor trip. She stopped at road houses for meals and in telling about one of her meals she said the house served moose steak, cream carrots, cauliflower, beets, peas, potatoes, all of the vegetables grown in the garden there. The rhubarb raised there stands about three and a half feet high.

The Harding Gateway, which was recently dedicated when the late President took his trip there, is a magnificent spot, Miss Turner said. On the rocks are printed in large white letters "Harding Gateway."

Three cruisers and three submarines came to Cordova while she was there and Miss Turner said she was "crazy to go aboard one." The phrase "I'm from Missouri, you've got to show me," practically got her the privilege of descending into one of them. They were all new subs, being out on a test cruise, the purpose of the cruise to survey some of the northern waters with perhaps the intention of the government of establishing a naval base some where along the coast of Alaska.

In Alaska the people use the colloquial phrase "inside" and "outside" when referring to taking a trip to or from Alaska to the states. While Miss Turner was at Fairbanks she become acquainted with a Mr. and Mrs. Quigley who own a gold mine located at Quigley Hill, near the edge of McKinley Park, and made a journey with them back to Seattle. She says that they told her of many Alaskan stories These two people had "mushed" it with dogs from their home at Quigley Hill to Fairbanks a distance of 95 miles. Mr. Quigley went to Alaska during the gold rush and is making his first trip "outside" in 32 years. Mrs. Quigley has not been out of Alaska since 1898.

The weather is warm until about the middle of September when the hunting season opens. Vegetation is wonderful according to Miss Turner, who says that she saw dahlias that were as large as a good sized plate. On inquiring the cause of such great growth of flowers and vegetables she was told that the sub-soil only extends three to three and a half feet deep below surface of the ground and below that there is a layer of ice which has been there for centuries. The long sunny days causes the ice to yield moisture and acts as a sort of irrigation.

The Red Cross Secretary said the only main drawback about her trip was she was limited on time and was not able to see or appreciate what Alaska has to offer.

Alleged Bank Bandit Arrested in Delaware

James Dudley Major Is Wanted in Kansas City for Robbery of Two Banks—Escaped in June.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 29—A bandit arrested here today for the holdup of a local grocery store gave the name of James Dudley Major, and it is said that he is wanted in Kansas City for the robbery of two banks.

Another man arrested with Major gave his name as Joseph Smith. The police say that the pair had terrorized persons in the shopping districts by a series of hold-ups.

Kansas City, Aug. 29.—James Dudley Major, arrested in Wilmington, Del., has not been heard of by officers here since his escape in June. Authorities declare that they are certain that the man who gave his name as Joseph Smith is Arleigh Eaton, a "pal" who is said to have aided Major in his escape.

While under guard of a deputy sheriff, Major was in a dentist's chair. Suddenly he ripped out a gun and after robbing two dentists and the officer he escaped in a waiting motor car. Authorities have never learned how he got the gun. Smith is believed to be the man who drove the car in which Major escaped. Major was being held here pending an appeal from a sentence of from ten to twenty years in the penitentiary. He was convicted for robbing the Piper State Bank near here. Major has a long police record.

M. H. S. RANKS HIGH IN EASTERN SCHOOL

WRITES FORREST MARTIN, WHO IS ATTENDING CHOATE

BROAD COURSE OFFERED

Head-master of Choate Says Best in Middlewest that He Has Observed—3 Vocational Courses

Forrest Martin, who is attending Choate Preparatory school at Wallingford Conn., recently wrote to his parents concerning the standard of the Maryville High School as is recognized in the Eastern schools.

At Choates, a two months series of tests are given in order to place the student in one of the six different forms. This is given without exception to all students entering the school, regardless of the standard and whether they are college or of high school ranking.

The Head-master of the school in reviewing the grades from the Maryville High School said, "Maryville High School gives the best all around course of any that I am acquainted with." This does not mean that the credits of Maryville High School would be accpted without examinations by any Eastern college but was referring to the preparation of the student for his work in daily life.

Forrest will finish the summer course on the 17th of September and will return to Maryville for a two weeks vacation with his parents. He will return to the winter term of Choates after the visit.

A glance at the courses offered by the local high school will verify the comment passed on Maryville High School. Three vocational courses, which are suitable to middle-west conditions are offered. They are home economics, vocational agriculture and the commercial course. This is exclusive of the manual training work in which two years course is offered.

In the social sciences ancient, middle-age, American and a half year course in Missouri history is offered. Economics, sociology and civic complete the half year social sciences.

Four years English and two years of Latin and French are offered on the schedule.

In mathematics algebra and geometry with advanced half year courses in algebra, arithmetic, and trigonometry can be secured.

In the science department general science, physics and chemistry are on the program.

In the commercial department commercial geography, commercial law, short-hand, typewriting and bookkeeping are scheduled.

Two years of home economics and vocational agriculture and one year of mechanical drawing and woodwork are on the schedule.

Last year an activity hour was also observed. At this time dramatics, debating, literary clubs and mathematic clubs met.

It has not been fully decided as yet whether an activity hour will be on the schedule for the coming year.

Aid Kansas Farmers to Purchase Seed

Chicago Board of Trade is Endeavoring to Underwrite $100,000 for Purchases of Seed Wheat

Chicago, Aug. 29—Farmers of fourteen Western Kansas Counties whose financial states prohibited purchasing of seed wheat as sowing time today received assurance that the seed will be provided.

Members of the Chicago Board of Trade were working to secure the underwriting of $100,000 for the purchases, and J. C. Mohler, secretary of agriculture of Kansas, said that $220,000 would be underwritten in the Southwest.

The country, which the Board voted to aid, comprises more than the western half of the seventh congressional district of Kansas.

RAISING CAPONS IS BECOMING POPULAR

COUNTY AGENT MAKES VISITS TO MANY NODAWAY FARMS

COMMAND GOOD PRICES

The Summer Months are Considered Best Time to Perform Operation on Young Chickens

The caponizing of cockerels is becoming general in Nodaway County. R. A. Kinnaird, county farm bureau agent, is getting many calls to perform operations on Nodaway poultry farms.

On Monday Mr. Kinnaird went out to the farm of Dave Brooks, west of Quitman and caponized 150 cockerels. He also made calls to Robert Barrett's west of Skidmore, at George McDaniel's west of Skidmore and at the J. B. Clements farm south of Maryville caponizing a total of 325 chickens. This week Friday he will caponize 100 for John F. Barber southwest of Skidmore and a bunch for F. W. Barber north of Burr Oak Church.

The operation of caponizing is an old custom and it is rather certain that it originated with the Chinese about 2,000 years ago and later performed by the people of Southern Europe. In the past the industry of raising capons has been popular only in the eastern parts of the United States, but recently has been introduced into the Middle West.

The advantage of raising capons is the fact that they grow more heartily and demand a better price on the market than cockerels. They are easier to care for, are cheaper to fatten and are not so difficult to raise being a quieter bird, than the chicken that is not caponized. In selecting the breed of birds to raise for capons it is best to choose those that are large. Plymouth Rocks, Light Brahmas, Cochins, Indian Games, Langshans and Wyandottes are all recommended.

The time of the operation is of little importance as to rapidity of healing. However, there are other influences that should be considered as to the time of operation. The summer months, extending into September are considered best because the chickens, if hatched in the spring, reach the weight of one-half to two and one-half pounds during the summer, and it takes about eight to ten months for the capon to develop, so that from Christmas until March, when the market is high they will bring good price.

The losses due to caponizing are very small and with a little care a big majority of them can be successfully raised. After the operation the capons should be confined in a closed yard where food and shelter can be provided but from ten days to two weeks they are in shape to be given full liberty.

Eastern markets have quoted higher prices on capons than in the Middle West, presumably because they have been popular there for a longer time that on the plains. Thus, most of the western farmers ship their capons east.

On Way to Michigan

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Swenson, two children and two nephews of Grand Rapids, Mich., stopped in Maryville last night. They have been visiting relatives in Kansas and now are motoring home. Mr. Swenson said he did not think that the people of Michigan would push Henry Ford for the presidency to any great extent. The roads in Kansas he found in good shape and the Missouri State Highway from St. Joseph to Maryville is fine.

PEACE PLAN WILL BE READY TONIGHT

GOVERNOR PINCHOT TO SUBMIT DOCUMENT AT CONFERENCE

'DEFINITE PROPOSITIONS'

Will be Included in Arbitration Plan —No Extended Meetings Will be Necessary

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 29—The plan by which Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania expects to avert the threatened anthracite coal strikes will be submitted to a joint meeting of miners and operators at 6 o'clock tonight, the Governor announced at noon.

The Governor's plans, which will be "a definite set of propositions" can be accepted or rejected by either side without extended meetings, have only been drafted. The plan will be kept secret until the hour of the meeting of Governor Pinchot with a number of governors and leaders in coal field districts.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Charges that union miners have been "assaulted, wounded and even killed by gunmen in the employ of non-union coal companies particularly in the bituminous fields" were laid before the United States Coal Commission in a report filed today by a committee representing the United Mine Workers of America.

In order that the true situation may be brought squarely before the public, Ellis Searles, John Moore and Thomas Kennedy urged that the commission in its forthcoming report on the subject of violation of civil rights in non-union fields "pronounce squarely that every man has the right to join a labor union if he desires and that this right shall not be interfered with by the use of forceful methods."

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 29—Father J. J. Curren, who has been in close touch with the miners for many years, conferred with Governor Pinchot today. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who came from Philadelphia this morning, is expected to attend the 6 o'clock meeting as the head of the miners' delegation.

Miners and operators both profess ignorance of the nature of the proposition to be submitted to them tonight.

Dragoo Will Sue the Power Co. for $15,000

Says Corporation Has Refused Transfer of Bonds and a $10,000 Promissory Note.

J. O. Dragoo, formerly owner of an electric light and power plant at Hopkins, has filed suit in circuit court against the Maryville Electric Light and Power Co., a corporation, for damages which he claims amounts to $15,000.

Mr. Dragoo gives cause of such action that the Maryville Electric Light and Power Co., bought his plant at Hopkins for the consideration of $20,000 June 1, 1923. He gave possession of his property on that day and was to receive $5,000 in cash, $5,000 of bonds, par value, of the Gas and Electric Corporation, preferred stock, and a promissory note of $10,000, payable March 1, 1924, at 6 per cent interest. The Maryville Power Company has refused to deliver the preferred stock and refused to execute and deliver the $10,000 promissory note, Dragoo says.

Mr. Dragoo claims that he has been damaged to the extent of $15,000, for which he is suing for judgment and interest at 6 per cent from June 1, 1923 to date of judgment and cost of the suit.

NEW YORK NEWS LETTER

by Carol Colbourne

New York.—The Reverend Dr. M. G. G. Scherer, secretary of the United Lutheran Church of America, the largest Lutheran body in the country, comprising about 1,500,000 church members, has some original ideas on political accord in the world today.

"To rise above political considerations is the chief need in world politics today," said Dr. Scherer. "Physical growth and improvement are always preceded by spiritual growth. It is the necessity for a sound inside before we can expect a harmonious outside. As soon as the nations reach a spiritual accord—definitely adopt for the first time the principles of Christianity—political accord and harmony must follow. But always we seem to begin at the wrong end. We attempt to force physical changes in order to achieve a spiritual result. Physical things are effects and are temporal; spiritual things are causes and are eternal. Let us correct the evil in our hearts toward men, then amelioration in our actions toward them will inevitably follow."

"Do you see any hopeful sign in this direction?" we asked.

"Yes, the World Convention of Lutherans held in Eisenach, August 19-26, in which representatives of forty nations will take part, including nearly all the countries involved in the recent war. Wartburg Castle, in which Luther sought refuge after the Diet of Worms in 1621, is near Eisenach, and will be the scene of many of the Convention meetings.

This gathering of Lutherans from the whole world, meeting in harmony and good will, is particularly significant at this time of bitterness and suspicion between nations. This Convention is entirely non-political. Its attempt is to promote good feeling among men of all nations, and to bring a little closer to the modern world the divine principles for which Christ lived and died."

Parisiennes and New Yorkers are wearing costumes of smart simplicity, reflecting the varied modes. Straight line frocks for street, tiered skirts, lace flounces and unusual draperies elaborate the slim line. Suede jackets embroidered with gayest wools vie with three quarter length coats matching or contrasting in color or fabric with gowns over which they are worn. Paris forecasts lace evening gowns and wraps in combination with some delightful fabric which carries out the idea of the dress beneath. Plaits, flounces, tabliers and huge puffed bows are intriguing decorations, while any desired neckline and sleeves are correct.

A musical burglar is collecting saxophones in New York City. For the second time in six months one of the large musical companies has had the window of one of its stores broken by a brick, after which a burglar took the entire display of saxophones in the window. He left the other musical instruments but gathered in enough "saxs" to equip an "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Bulk may be beauty in countries of the Orient, but slenderness is the criterion of grace in the Occident. Ideals of beauty are as varied as the tribes of the earth, but the slim line is an unchanging fashion and the figure must be carefully corseted or the loveliest gown in the world will be a failure.

In fact, wearing a corset is a feature of the fall mode. In recent interviews with representatives of many of New York's leading costumers, Hickson, Joseph, Bergdorf-Goodman, Redfern, Harry Collins and Milgrim (whose famous Sally always wears a corset) we were told that all fall costumes will be fitted over corsets; not the stiff, cramping, old-time instrument of torture, but a soft, flexible restrainer of too exuberant flesh—a modern, slenderizing beautifier.

At the recent convention of dancing masters in New York, the return of the old-fashioned waltz and the introduction of an American tango suited to modern ballrooms were predicted, along with the decline of too jazzy jazz.

Under the restriction of armaments agreement we still had coming to us the super-dreadnought Colorado, recently launched at the New York Shipbuilding Yards at Camden, New Jersey. She is equipped with eight 16-inch guns, and is propelled by the Westinghouse Turbo-Electric System. She is the most formidable sea fighter in the world.

J. D. Mutz of southwest of Maryville is constructing a frame poultry house. The size of the new building is 20 by 22 feet. The plans that Mr. Mutz is using were drawn up by the poultry department of the University of Missouri. The house will house about 125 hens.

R. A. Kinnaird, county farm bureau agent reports that between twenty-five and thirty of this style of chicken houses have been built in Nodaway County during the last three years.

A Correction

In an account of the rural school board meeting published in yesterday's Democrat-Forum, Dr. Fred Keller was quoted as saying, "society women, retired business men and farmers are not successful school board members." He did not wish to convey the impression that farmers made unsuccessful school board members but that "retired farmers" did. Dr. Keller went on to say that a farmer owing about 160 acres of land was the ideal school board member.

Judge Tompson to Locate in that City —R. M. Cordill Admitted to Bar

The following items were taken from the San Pedro, Cal., Daily Pilot about former Maryville people:

Judge J. W. Tompson, until recently of Maryville, Nodaway County, Missouri, but now looking for a location in Southern California, was here today to pay a visit to his old friend, Harbor Commissioner C. J. Colden, who was prominent in Nodaway county for many years.

Judge Tompson presided in the probate court for several terms. He has been here before, and, like so many other visitors, has now returned to stay. He is much impressed with the growth of San Pedro and may decide to locate here permanently.

Robert M. Cordill, son of T. S. Cordill of 3533 Carolina avenue, San Pedro, was among the recent men admitted to the State Bar of California. Cordill passed the law examinations with a high grade after completing his course at the University of Southern California.

The young attorney is connected with the branch of the California Bank at 2914 Whittier boulevard, Los Angeles. His plans for the future have not been announced.

In the nature of a farewell compliment to Mrs. B. C. Hall, and daughter, Miss Nellie Hall, who leave for their home in Maryville, Missouri, within the next few days, after a visit at the home of Mrs. Hall's brother and sister in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Colden, was the attractively arranged dinner over which Mr. and Mrs. Cordill presided Monday evening at their home, 3533 Carolina street.

The Halls and the Coldens were formerly neighbors of the Cordills in Missouri and the dinner afforded them a pleasant opportunity to talk over old times.

Covers were marked for Mrs. B. C. Hall, Miss Nellie Hall, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Colden and Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Cordill.

Bible Thought for Today

MORE THAN CONQUERORS.—All things work together for good to them that love God. If God be for us, who can be against us? Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us.—Romans 8:28, 31, 35, 37.

A MOTOR OR A TITLE.

When a subject of the British king gets a title he pays a fee for what is called the letters patent. This is a fixed tribute quite apart from party contributions or any other digging up of coin which may or may not be antecedent to the honor. This scale of fees is interesting: Duke, $1,625; marquis, $1,400; earl, $1,150; viscount, $930; baron, $700; baronet, $465.

To an American the list reads like an automobile catalogue and in fact these sums mean just that to the American. He observes that a baronet is in the popular low priced class and can feel that in buying a car with his $465 he is getting more for his money than is the baronet. With $1,625 in his pocket the average American contemplates a good middle-class sedan and has a wide range of choice at that figure. The duke has purchased the right to put a coronet on the panels of his motor car, but the American has bought the car.

The comparative price lists are significant and even educative, for experience has shown many a marquis who hadn't the cash price of a Ford. On a basis of getting value for money the motor has it all over the letters patent of nobility.

THE ABUSED BACHELOR.

Who is it that always delights the mothers by chucking their youngsters under the chin, and who never fails to have some peppermints in his pockets? Why, the bachelor friend of the family, of course. Yet you never hear his praises sung. There is a Mother's Day, and a Father's Day, but there is no day for unwed uncles, natural or acquired.

Every bachelor is a potential uncle to every kid. Every bachelor responds when Johnny trots out his shiny new pig bank. When Daddy can't find a penny for sister, the old bach who happens to be there sticks his hand in his pocket, remarks that he believes he has a little chicken feed, and presents Sis with a big nickel—invariably.

Married folk are entirely too fond of running down the bachelor. Maybe the poor fellow does occasionally need a button, and perhaps he's not just as careful as his friends' wives think he should be. But goodness knows we all have faults. If you think a man never amounts to anything until he gets married, just consider some of the notable bachelors of history.

Michelangelo, the artist, was unmarried, as was Voltaire, the philosopher. Then there were Rafael, Chopin, Beethovan, Charles Lamb, Pope, Henry James and Swinburne. Add Petrarch, Kitchener, Cecil Rhodes and President Buchanan to the list, and you'll agree that the bachelors have a little Hall of Fame all their own.

THE MEDICINE OF SOLITUDE.

Remarking that "solitude is the greatest medicine a man can take," a former Princeton student who has spent ten years as a hermit on a lonely island in Chesapeake Bay, with study for diversion, has rejoined human society.

Taken in such a dose as that which he prescribed for himself, it would drive most people mad. In homeopathic quantities, however, there is something to be said in its behalf. Solitude does more than anything else to develop the resources for entertainment that are to be found in one's own mind. And the person with these resources developed has a happier time than one who is dependent for entertainment on the society of other people. The latter is likely to be bored if forced by circumstances to spend any considerable period alone. He tires of reading, he tires of playing solitaire, or of playing the phonograph, and knows of no other way in which to divert himself. On the other hand the self-contained person is usually a student, who finds everything around him worthy of study and only regrets that he does not have more time at his disposal for solitude and study.

The student finds life more interesting than the person who cannot bear solitude, and is likely to make a more valuable contribution to the world's welfare.

A liberal amount of solitude is indispansable to the highest mental cultivation. There can be little deep thinking without it.

If a lot of people would exercise as much energy in doing something worth while as they do in getting into and getting out of trouble, what a power they would be.

While you are spending all your substance in the pleasures of today rather than deny yourself enough to save a few cents necessary to lay up a little fund for old age, it may be well to remember that statistics show that a very large percentage of men who reach the age of sixty-five are without support of their own and at the mercy of others for their keep. This is worth thinking about. There is no need to fear that all the pleasure and fool things you buy will run out if you don't buy them today. There will be things to buy long after you are broke and in your grave.

Alfalfa Web Worm Is Becoming Serious Pest

The Hay Should Be Cut, Taken Off and Fields Dragged to Check Them.

The alfalfa web worm, which was recently discovered in some fields throughout Nodaway County, is reported to the farm bureau office as increasing rapidly. The worm is becoming a serious pest in many fields and should be watched for by all farmers having alfalfa.

Mr. Kinnaird gives the following advice to check the worm. The hay should be cut and taken off the field in order to starve the worms. The fields should be dragged, preferably with a heavily weighted brush drag, the purpose of this is to kill those remaining on the fields. A cultivating harrow can also be used to go over the alfalfa fields, but it will not be effective as the brush drag.

The worm eats the green out of the leaves. Tiny black spots are left in the tops with a kind of a white web. The worm does not completely ruin the alfalfa, but as to being fit for use for feed for cattle Mr. Kinnaird, the county agent, is really not certain after the web worm gets through its path of destruction.

St. Francis Hospital Ranks With the Best

The following is from this week's Bedford Times-Republican:

We see by the Maryville Daily Democrat-Forum that W. D. Griffith of Bedford was taken to the hospital last week, and that the persons who were dismissed from that institution were: Bertha Weir and Mrs. Charles Dinges. We noticed by the list published that 21 had been taken to that hospital during the first five days of last week. We understand that there is a move on foot to either enlarge the hospital at Maryville or build a new one. The reputation of this hospital is gaining prominence all over the country and people are flocking there from every section. The surgery at this place will rank with that of the Mayo's at Rochester.

Cattle Receipts Fifty Thousand Hogs Rule Higher

Kansas City, Aug. 27—Today's receipts 50,000 cattle and 10,000 calves were the largest by a big margin on any day this year, and the official count for the day may take the total above 50,000, or a new record for all times. A quarter decline in Chicago weakened prices here to some extent on grain fat grades, and grass fat steers were off 10 to 15 cents. Hogs were in active demand at 10 to 15 cents higher prices, in the face of declines in St. Louis and Chicago. Sheep and lambs were strong, top lambs $13.35.

Today's Receipts

Receipts today were 50,000 cattle, 10,000 calves, 12,000 hogs and 10,000 sheep, compared with 39,150 cattle, 7,975 calves, 12,411 hogs and 6,120 sheep a week ago, and 28,764 cattle, 9,289 calves, 8,814 hogs and 6,433 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle

Chicago under a run of 30,000 cattle, 6,000 of which were northwest grass fat grades, quoted prices weak to 25 cents lower. Kansas City with 50,000 cattle, the large per cent of which were western grass grades, was steady to 15 cents lower. The best fed steers were steady and others down 10 to 15 cents. The general market exhibits large demand from local killers and order and shipper buyers from all sections of the country. They were taking all classes that will fit into killing requirements. Prime grain fat steers sold up to $12.50, and other good to choice steers brought $10.50 to $12.25. The rank and file of the western steers, many of them common to fair, are bringing $5.50 to $7.25, and the better grades $7.50 to $8.50. Cows and heifers were 10 to 15 cents lower and sold slowly. Veal calves and bulls were steady.

Stockers and Feeders

Choice fleshy feeders and better classes of light weight feeders and stockers were steady, and the medium plain and common kinds were quoted off 10 to 25 cents. Demand remained large and volume promises to exceed last week.

Hogs

Though the Chicago and St. Louis markets came lower, strong demand here caused a 10 to 15 per cent advance in hog prices, and the general market reached a new high position for the season. The top price was $8.80 and the bulk of the good hogs sold at $8.35 to $8.70. Rough, heavy classes and light weights brought $7.25 to $8.25, packing sows $6.00 to $6.50 and pigs $6.50 to $7.00. Offerings were cleaned up early at the advance.

Sheep and Lambs

Lamb prices were stronger and sheep steady. Most of the offerings were western lambs that sold at $13.00 to $13.35 and native lambs that sold at $12.00 to $12.65. Few fat sheep were available. The run from now on will be mostly from the west and the increase mostly in feeding classes.

Horses and Mules

Demand for horses and mules is increasing and trade is fairly active. Larger supplies of mules are needed to meet requirements.

Should Lawyers Make Our Laws?

Samuel Adams, Director General, Uncle Sam's Voters, Washington, D. C

It is significant that in some Congresses 85 to 90 per cent of the members of the House of Representatives and of the United States are lawyers, and in many state legislatures the percentage is nearly as large; of course, in some predominantly agricultural states of the west the percentage of lawyers is much smaller. There is a strong movement in the United States to put more farmers and other workers into Congress and state legislature, and to get more workers in municipal legislative bodies.

Yes

1. Every law is now subject to the approval of the courts. In most states, courts can, by a majority of one, declare a law unconstitutional. The Supreme Court of the United States can do this. It is, therefore, most important that laws should be drafted with a minimum chance that the courts can declare them unconstitutional. Lawyers naturally know more about constitutional provisions than laymen, and therefore should be chiefly entrusted with drafting our laws.

2. Lawyers are the brains of most businesses and know business thoroughly because much of their legal work is connected with commercial enterprises. Most legislation affects business in one way or another, and lawyers are best qualified to determine the effect of legislation upon the business and commercial life of the nation.

3. There are scores of thousands of laws, known only to lawyers—not only federal and state statutes but city ordinances that only lawyers know about, and this information is essential to determine whether proposed laws are necessary or whether they conflict with existing statutes or ordinances.

4. Lawyers know how laws operate. They are expert at watching and interpreting the effectiveness and operation of laws and the results of judicial interpretation of laws, which is equal in importance to knowledge of the text of the laws themselves. Laymen have no such experience.

5. States are enacting more general legislation and less local and detailed legislation, leaving these details to municipalities to determine by ordinances or by referenda of the voters. Such general legislation must be most carefully drawn, with the full knowledge which only lawyers through their profession can have, regarding the general and special legislation affected thereby.

6. Lawyers know best the limitation of legislation and do not try to legislate goodness and prosperity for all, as many laymen are inclined to do.

7. Lawyers have to understand economics because of their business affiliations, and to know the broad operation of economic laws. But among the general public economics is as little understood as black magic.

8. Lawyers have respect for property rights and are more conservative and constructive in legislation regarding property than those who want to change the entire economic and industrial system over night by an Act of Congress or State Legislature.

8. Lawyers are more practical. They know how easy it is to legislate prosperity out of existence and how hard it is to create prosperity by legislation. Many laymen haven't learned this.

9. Good lawyers are established in the communities from which they are elected, have had more than average education and are well-known in their respective communities. They are subject to control, supervision and disbarment by city or state bar associations or courts if their conduct is unethical, a restraint not true with reference to laymen legislators.

10. Lawyers are not too reactionary. Some of the most progressive members of the United States Senate and House of Rrepresentatives, as well as of many state legislatures are lawyers including a large proportion of members of the progressive bloc, farm bloc and other blocs in Congress and state legislatures. It is not the occupation of a legislator which determines his attitude on public questions involved in legislation, but his viewpoint.

No

Lawyers often purposely draft legislation so vague, indefinite and misleading that no one can understand it, in order to create remunerative litigation for themselves, and this is not a fair way in which to legislate, nor one advantageous to the public as a whole.

2. Lawyers use their position as legislators for publicity—to bring themselves before the public and keep themselves in the public eye. Most lawyers, particularly trial lawyers, have to be fluent speakers and good "mixers." Many lawyers get themselves elected as legislators for self-advertising.

3. Lawyers have been the chief lawmakers in the past and have done badly. Some years as high as 90 per cent of the members of both branches of Congress have been lawyers, and often almost an equally large percentage of members of state legislatures, particularly in industrial states. That a botch has been made of national and state legislation is shown by certain deplorable, financial, economic, industrial and agricultural conditions in parts of the United States today.

4. Lawyers are steeped in legalism and unable to think clearly on economic issues. They cannot even interpret the state and federal Constitutions, as proven by the large number of lawyer drafted laws which are declared unconstitutional.

5. Lawyers are the great bulwarks of privilege and exalt property rights above human rights. Every important piece of legislation involves a conflict between property and human beings.

6. Lawyers as lawyers do not know how to make a success of business, but merely how to keep their business clients within the law and outside the penitentiary.

7. Successful lawyers get such big fees that they place a false value on labor. They overestimate shrewdness and underestimate the value of productive labor and the remuneration to which productive labor is entilted.

8. Lawyers do not know what laws are on the statute books without making the same sort of a special study that a layman or legislator would have to make.

9. Lawyers usually look forward to the bench and know that they won't have much chance for such appointments if they sponsor or support what is regarded as "radical" legislation, however just it may be.

10. Many laws require technical knowledge of economics or branches of business, and should be framed by experts in those particular lines.

11. There is seldom an absolute in legislation. Laws declared unconstitutional may have the quality of judicial wisdom on their side in a divided court, if not the quantity.

OBITUARY

Ross Junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton G. Carden, was born April 19, 1921, near Quitman, Mo., departed this life August 23, 1923, at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Ross of Quitman. Besides his parents he leaves his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Mart Carden of Skidmore and a host of relatives to mourn. The funeral was held at the M. E. Church in Quitman, Friday by Elder Taggart of Burlington Junction, after which we laid the little body to rest in the I. O. O. F. cemetery. While our hearts are aching for our darling, we all loved so well we know some day we shall see him. No his precious life had not been lived in vain for over 2 years, it had brought comfort and joy to us. We had locked forward to his manhood, but without a moments warning he was taken bad sick, having spent the night before with his grandmother Carden at Skidmore, was in perfect health the morning he left, that evening and was taken bad while he lingered. He suffered for 10 days and was unconscious most of the time. All was done that loving hands could do. We must all submit to God's will not our.

Precious darling how we loved you,
Seems it can't be true
You have gone away and left us
But some day we will see you
Sweetheart how we loved you,
Perhaps it won't be long,
We'll clasp you in our arms again
And sing to you the song
You always loved to hear us sing.
Go to sleep my little baby,
Sleep and do not fear
Your grandma, little sweetheart
And your mother Dear
You're a litle angel,
Your father's hope and joy,
You're our own sweet baby,
And to all of us a joy.

Mrs. Mart Carden, his grandmother.

PONY EXPRESSMAN TELLS EXPERIENCES

RELATES INCIDENTS IN FAMOUS RIDE OF 1861

CARRIED LINCOLN SPEECH

Prize of $5,000 Given to Ridder Who Made Best Time on Long Trip

Los Angeles, Aug. 29—The old days of the West may be gone, but they have not been forgotten.

"They can't do it! They can't—to save their hides—they can't do it."

It was Tom Ranahan, typical and picturesque pioneer of the West and one-time "pony express" rider, talking He was announcing what he thinks of the intention of promoters to endeavor to hang up a new record to break the one established in 1861, when riders on the "pony express" negotiated the 2,000 miles between St. Joseph Mo., and Sacremento in 7 days and 21 hours.

His 81 years in the West have not registered indelibly on Ranahan and his whitened hair and bronzed skin show he has lived an outdoor life.

"Shucks," he said to the suggestion that improved roads of today aid the riders to set a better record than in '61.

"Through rain, sleet, snow—all kinds of weather—and night and day they rode on, "Ranahan exclaimed as he smote the floor with his cane. "Each rider was supposed to ride for eight hours, but many a time he had to ride all night, if the rider that was to relieve him was sick or had been killed by 'Injuns' or outlaws."

Ranahan then detailed some of the inside incidents to the record-breaking ride which was established when President Lincoln's inaugural address was carried westward over the plains to Sacramento.

Tells of Record Ride

"A prize of $5,000 was to be given to the rider who made the best time on his ride, and that was Johnny Fry," Ranahan went. "Yep, Johnny made the fastest ride. There was no dispute about it. It was a ride, too. What his time was I don't remember, but they'll never beat it."

Pushing his big black hat on the back of his head, Ranahan leaned confidential-like toward the correspondent, who sat opposite him. He tapped the calf of correspondent's leg with an unsteady finger and whispered hoarsely:

"They have the roads, I guess, but they haven't the stuff right here, my boy." He continued thumping the reporter's leg triumphantly and added: "You gotta have the stuff in the leg before you can ride a pony express like we used to in the old days. No, sir, they simply ain't growin' calves on their legs like they used t'!"

Ranahan shifted the long black cigar in his mouth. It was apparent he was anxious to go on with his story about the "pony express."

"They started from St. Joe and had stations about every fifteen miles, where the riders would change horses. They had to make ten miles an hour, and the average horse couldn't stand much more than and last under it. Three minutes was the usual time allowed riders to change horses when they reached these stations.

Gamblers Took a Hand

"You know, there was a great big swindle about that ride, too. Big gamblers in Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee and other cities cleaned up thousands. After making their pool of the bets the gamblers went out through Kentucky and the entire South and got blooded horses. They substituted these at various lines along the route and knew how fast they could go and would bet on these horses which they had substituted.

"Well, among other things, there was Johnny's great swim across the river during that ride. Johnny's ride was out of St. Joe to Seneca, eighty miles. The ferry boat people had posted a $3,000 bond to have the ferry boat ready to take Johnny and his horse across, so Johnny never thought anything about it.

"When he started from the Beatty House, in St. Joe, they fired a cannon so's to let the ferry people know he was coming. All the town was out to see him off. But when he got down to the river the boat was on the other side. The gamblers had bribed someone. But that didn't stop that rider. His little mare swam right on across.'

Ranahan didn't stop with the telling about Johnny Fry. He told about a lot of the other "boys," among them being Jim Keatly, who, so Ranahan said, covered 324 miles in a little less than 24 hours; Jim Moore, who went 280 miles in 22 hours, and several others.

"Those old days are gone now,' Ranahan said, "and they can't bring 'em back either. Nor can they beat the record established by the pony express riders of '61."

World Bros. Circus to Show Tomorrow

Circus Train Will Arrive Early Tomorrow Morning—At Kuchs' Pasture, First and Depot Sts.

The World Brothers circus will arrive in Maryville early tomorrow morning from Bedford, Ia., where they are showing today.

The circus will show on the Kuchs grounds at First and Depot streets. There will be two performances, one in the afternoon and one at night.

The parade is scheduled for 11 o'clock in the morning.

There will be about eight men added to the police force to take care of the crowd and the traffic tomorrow, Harve England, chief of police, said today. No arrangements have been made about clearing the streets for the parade but the city will not clear Main street unless necessary.

According to press notices, the World Brothers circus has an extensive array of wild and domestic animal performers.

Jennie, who is said to be the oldest elephant in the world, is the property of Fred Buchanan, owner of the World Brothers circus. Jennie has traveled with shows in this country for over seventy-five years and has been exhibited to more people than any other living animal.

Jennie is showing her age now and there is no telling how old she is—probably three or four hundred years old, but she is still lively enough to go from the cars to the show grounds and keep up with the balance of the herd. Every afternoon, unlike the rest of the elephants, she has to take a nap. This usually takes place after she has played with the children for an hour.
